WELCOME HOME PLANS ARE DISCUSSED IN DETAIL AT ROUSING COMMITTEE RALLY

Every Unit of the Celebration Organization Represented at Meeting.

KURTZ IS TOURING COUNTY

Reports Show That Much of the Groundwork for the Reception For Service Men and Women of Old Front Has Been Laid; Holiday Asked.

Spurred on by the early return of Company D and the Medical Detachment of the 110th Infantry and the knowledge that the entire 80th Division has embarked for home, members of committees planning for the welcome celebration for the service men and women were out in larger numbers at the weekly meeting of the central committee last evening at city hall than at any time since the movement was begun. In response to the invitation of the central committee, there was a representative, in many instances, several of every committee that has been named.

Two hours time was consumed in hearing reports and discussing details of the home-coming. Every committee had some kind of a report, some, it was discovered, had not yet organized, but assurance was given by all at once get down to work.

County Organizer J. Fred Kurtz, it is learned, is aiding in the general movement by a county-wide canvass this week, getting everybody lined up for the celebration.

The chairman called upon the committees in alphabetical order, the first being the advertising committee, represented by J. J. Driscoll, who reported that he had found that $124 could cover the expenses for advertising the celebration outside of Connellsville in the county papers.

The Baltimore and Ohio-Veterans Association told the chairman that it would work with the labor organizations instead of in a distinct body. The labor organizations represented by S. Desnoes said that he could be referred to the chairman to R. M. Wagoner of the shop federation who reported that they had held a meeting and decided definitely upon a float for the parade and all in all the committee was progressing fine.

Harry Anderson, representing the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Engineers, reported progress.

James Charlesworth of the choir committee reported that he had not much chance to work on the same for the memorial service as he had been pretty well taken up with the concert which will be given on June 27, by the united church societies of the city for the benefit of the special fund. When asked if it could be arranged to have the united choir sing for the memorial service he said that it would be possible.

Rev. A. J. Payne of the colored committee reported that he had definitely secured three colored bands and that a large colored delegation on the surrounding towns could be expected on the big day.

The committee on street decorations reported that it had made several efforts to hold a meeting, but could not get a full attendance, but at the last meeting, which was attended by four people, a decorator from Johnston was present, but nothing definite was done as the committee is in touch with three other decorators and nothing will be done until they are heard from.

The financial committee represented by A. O. Bixler, reported that it would look through if the central committee did not enlarge too much on the expenses.

Anthony Pollack, representing foreign organizations, reported that there could be a meeting Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock in the Slavish hall on the West Side and asked that a might be sent over from the committee to explain to the men out of the celebration.

A. M. Haines, representing the bands committee, reported that it had secured what it was after, but it had not heard from the committee on floats. The two committees were instructed to meet together.

O. R. Herwick of the music committee said that its work had been idled up because he had not heard from a out of town committees in regard to delegations bringing bands, but as the music committee would be able to furnish ample music. He was instructed to get in touch with these strivers and insist upon an answer on at question.

The safety committee, represented by James S. Darr, reported that it had considered having a safety first men here for the celebration and suggested Clyde J. Brehm, president of the Fayette local of the National Safety Council. The secretary was instructed to write for Mr. Brehm.

F. A. Cypher reported that everything was ready so far as he was concerned on the water committee. He Continued on Page Seven.

SEVENTY THOUSAND SPENT BY B. & O. IN PLAGUE FIGHT HERE

Announcement of Heavy Cost of Emergency Hospital Last Fall Made by Secretary Underwood.

Seventy thousand dollars was spent by the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad company during the influenza epidemic last fall to keep up the emergency hospital in this city alone. Such was the statement at the dinner given the members of the teams soliciting members in the local Baltimore and Ohio Y. M. C. A. by Secretary W. F. Underwood.

The assertion was made by Mr. Underwood in speaking of persons belittling the Baltimore and Ohio and the Y. M. C. A. when asked to become members of the organization.

"Don't they know," he said, "that the Baltimore and Ohio railroad purchased this building for the use of employees only? It has been thrown open to the business men of the town in appreciation of the fact that it contains the only gymnasium in the city that is available to the business man."

"And I know it to be a positive fact," he continued, "that the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad company spent almost $70,000 on this one emergency hospital alone. Why, we have enough materials stored in this building to start another hospital, and we will do it if it becomes necessary."

FRIDAY PROBABLE RETURN DATE OF LOCAL 110TH BOYS

Will Receive Discharges Tomorrow, According to the Present Schedule.

CROWLEY BRINGS NEWS

Former Member of Medical Unit Visits Soldiers and Has Good Time With Them; Men Talk at Parading in Pittsburg; They Have Had Enough.

The members of the 110th Infantry may be home late tomorrow or Friday if the program now being carried out at Camp Dix is not delayed. The men are up for examination today and will be paid off and receive their discharges sometime tomorrow if everything goes off according to schedule.

Word to this effect is brought home by Clifton Crowley, who left here as a member of the 110th Medical Detachment, but who was transferred while in France and returned with the 32nd Division. He arrived home this morning, receiving his discharge at Camp Dix yesterday.

Crowley saw all the local boys while there. The other members of the medical outfit had thought Crowley was still in France. The 28th sailed before the 32nd embarked but the latter came over on the transport George Washington in seven and a half days, cutting in half the running time as compared with that made by the Luckenbach and Santa Olivia, and arriving here before those ships. Crowley was with a casual company at Camp Merritt for 10 days, finally going to Camp Dix for his transfer.

The 110th boys are getting restless and each day sees them more anxious to be on their way. They have been in camp for 10 days now and every day grows longer to them.

Reports from Washington are that Colonel Joe Thompson, after several conferences, left there for Camp Dix to try to persuade the men, of the "Fighting Tenth" to march in Pittsburg. It is understood the men are opposed to another parade.

Lieutenant Colonel John Alken telegraphed to the War Department that the officers and men of the 110th Infantry were almost unanimously opposed to being transferred to Camp Sherman for mustering out after a parade in Pittsburg. Colonel Thompson announced himself personally as favoring a parade in Pittsburg but said he thought the boys had had enough parading in Philadelphia to last them the rest of their lives.

Word received at Mount Pleasant is that the 110th men from that community will be discharged Thursday and reach home Friday. Great preparations are under way for a welcome for them.

William Bowyer, a member of Company D, telegraphed his parents here he would arrive on Thursday. The message was received on Monday.

COMMAND PROBABLY WILL NOT PARADE

WASHINGTON, May 21.—The 110th Regiment (Old Tenth) in all probability will not parade in Pittsburg as desired by the mayor's welcome committee. The reason for this is the attitude of the men of the organization who would, should they participate in the parade and then go from Pittsburg to Camp Sherman, Chilibotho, O., not to be mustered out of the service for probably a week later than if mustered out should take place at Camp Dix.

Lieutenant Colonel John H. Alken, in a message to the War Department yesterday, said, concerning the proposed parade:

"The officers and men of the 110th Regiment who come from Western Pennsylvania, are almost unanimously opposed to being transferred to Camp Sherman for muster out after a parade."

RETURN TO DUTY

Assurance Given of Safety of Soldiers Reported Missing.

Private Michael McGrogan, next of kin Mrs. Ellen McGrogan, of West Newton, and Private Corby Pierson Sarnas, next of kin Mrs. Flora Strosmider, R. F. D. 1, Kirby, Greene county, who were previously reported missing in action, have returned to duty according to today's casualty list.

Private Addison McWilliams, a marine, who was also previously reported missing in action, is reported as having returned to duty. His next of kin given is Addison McWilliams of Canonsburg.

Fred at Cumberland, Frederick Charles Rowe, a chauffeur, and Margaret Richter, both of Connellsville, were granted a license to wed in Cumberland.

Mrs. Royer III, Mrs. Nelson Boyer is very ill at her home at Scottsdale of pneumonia.

AIRPLANES TO BE USED TO SPY OUT MOONSHINE PLANTS

By Associated Press

WASHINGTON, May 21.—Moonshiners may soon have revenue agents in airplanes on their trail. Beset with difficulties of finding the illicit whisky stills in mountain fastnesses of the South revenue agents developed the idea of spying up on the hidden liquor makers from the skies.

So Revenue Commissioner Roper asked the War Department for the loan of several airplanes which it was proposed to equip with the telephoto-graphic apparatus to take pictures of moonshine stills while flying low, the pictures to be used as evidence when the moonshiners are caught and brought into court.

CATHOLICS ARE ADMITTED FULLY TO THE Y. M. C. A.

Narrow Policy of Before the War a Thing of the Past, Underwood Declares.

SUBSCRIPTIONS INCREASE

Army Has Total of 63 in Drive in Connellsville While Navy Comes Along With Eight; Not All Subscriptions Have Been Reported.

Several questions of vital importance were brought up at the dinner yesterday evening in the Y. M. C. A. auditorium in regard to the membership campaign now under way. After the dinner was over it was suggested that the campaign be thrown open today and not wait until tomorrow.

Secretary W. F. Underwood, secretary of the Y. M. C. A., favored this plan and said that he had a few words to say.

He took the floor and stated that questions had reached his ears regarding Catholics in the "Y." He stated that once upon a time before the world war, there used to be a narrow minded race of people in cities and large towns who sought to bar the Catholics. During the war the greater majority of the people saw the wrong in this and sought to correct it. Over in France the Catholics are holding mass in the "Y" but away up front where the K. of C. has no buts, he said.

"There used to be a rule," he said, "in the Young Men's Christian association that a Catholic could not hold a place on the board of management. That today is not the case. The railroad Y. M. C. A. all over the country is abandoning that rule and I think that there is none here so narrow minded that he would do otherwise."

It was suggested that a large hall be secured with "100 per cent" printed on it to be given to all the stores and establishments in which every male employee has taken out a membership in the Y. M. C. A. regardless of the number of employees.

Saturday evening there will be a general get together meeting in the "Y" for all the new members and all the old ones, too, for that matter. "Hot dogs" will be served to all and moving pictures will be shown throughout the evening.

The reports turned in last evening show better for the "Army" but worse for the "Navy" owing to the fact that J. T. Ward, captain of team No. 6, left without turning in his report. The "Navy" secured "General" George W. Campbell of the "Army" that they would do better today. The report showed the following:

ARMY
General George W. Campbell	Full Reg. Boys Tot.

HOPE FOR HAWKER AND GRIEVE NOW VIRTUALLY AT END

Fellow Aviators Are Becoming Convinced Sopwith Crew Perished.

NC 4 FLIGHT IS DELAYED

American Naval Plane at Ponta Delgada Encounters Engine Trouble and Time of Departure is Now Uncertain; WHI Not Be Ready, is Statement.

By Associated Press

ST. JOHNS, May 21.—Hope for the safety of Harry G. Hawker and Commander MacKenzie Grieve, missing since they set out eastward through the air on Sunday a Sopwith biplane for Ireland, was virtually abandoned today by the British fliers preparing here to take wing in their wake. News of the safety of the NC 3 after being so long on the water had been a source of encouragement, but it is recognized that the Hawker-Grieve machine carried only a cockleshell emergency boat as compared with the stout hulls of the American naval plane.

WASHINGTON, May 21.—Resumption of the trans-Atlantic flight by the naval seaplane NC 4 again has been delayed. A message to the Navy Department early this morning from Admiral Jackson at Ponta Delgada said that one of the plane's engines had developed trouble and that the start for Lisbon would not be made today. No mention was made of weather conditions.

LONDON, May 21, 10:27 A. M.—The American Navy seaplane NC 4 will not start for Lisbon from Ponta Delgada today, according to a wireless dispatch received here by American naval authorities. The engine of the seaplane is failing to work satisfactorily, making a postponement of the flight imperative.

DOWN 28 GERMAN PLANES

Springfield Township Boys Return After Valiant Service Abroad.

Back from France where their command, the First Anti-aircraft Machine Gun Battalion, downed 28 German airplanes during the last two months of the war, First Class Privates Gasper Laws and James Laws of Normalville called at The Courier office this morning to tell of their return. They are brothers, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Matthew Laws. Both are looking fine. Neither was wounded. A brother, Roy Laws, who returned last March, was less fortunate, having sampled Hun gas.

The Laws brothers were mustered out at Camp Dix yesterday and immediately started for home. They were overseas for 10 months.

Clyde Sparks Home.

Held at Camp Dix for a week or longer while recovering from mumps contracted on the way over the Atlantic, Clyde C. Sparks, of the 16th Construction Company, arrived this morning at the home of his mother, Mrs. S. H. Sparks at Poplar Grove.

CABINET ISSUES STATEMENT TO ASSOCIATED PRESS THAT ENVOYS WILL REFUSE TO SIGN

Acceptance Will Mean Economic Destruction, Political Dishonor and Moral Degradation, Claim Set Forth.

MORE NOTES COMING, CONFERENCE IS INFORMED

By Associated Press

PARIS, May 21.—Count von Brockdorff-Rantzau, head of the German peace delegation, has asked an extension of time for Germany to present her reply regarding the peace terms. The count stated that further notes were being prepared and that it would be impossible to complete them by 1 P. M. Thursday, when the time limit is up.

It is believed, says the Havas agency, that the request for the extension will be granted. The note says the Germans desire more time to study a number of questions in the treaty which they have not yet had an opportunity to examine. There is no official intimation regarding the decision of the Allied and associated powers on the request.

BERLIN, Tuesday, May 20.—"Germany declines to sign the peace terms laid before it because they spell the economic destruction, political dishonor and moral degradation of the entire German nation, not only for the present, but also for still unborn generations," was a statement authorized by the cabinet this morning through the Associated Press.

"That these consequences must logically follow acceptance of the peace conditions the American press itself has recognized without question," the statement continued. "Toward them Germany took the standpoint that acceptance of such conditions could not be demanded and that the Entente was unjustified in imposing such demands."

WILSON'S PLAN TO LIFT PROHIBITION IS LIKELY TO FAIL

Leaders in Congress Express Opposition to Scheme Outlined in Message Yesterday.

WASHINGTON, May 21.—President Wilson's announcement that he intends to return the railroad to private operation at the end of this year and his recommendation for legislation allowing the use of wine and beer until the prohibition amendment becomes effective were the features of his message to Congress yesterday about which the interest of members apparently centered.

Republican Leader Lodge and Democratic Leader Martin of the Senate declined to comment. Other Republican leaders, however, declared that legislation at this session for return of the railroads virtually was assured. Regarding the prohibition recommendation predictions were general that the repeal legislation requested would not be enacted, although some prohibition advocates favored the President's plans, fearing the war-time act cannot be enforced properly.

"I am not for that," said Senator Sheppard, Democrat of Texas, author of the war-time prohibition act, regarding the prohibition repeal recommendation. "I do not believe Congress will repeal it."

"We passed the prohibition legislation without much help from the President and we do not intend to repeal it," said Senator Jones of Washington, a Republican prohibition leader.

STARVATION AND CHAOS IN RUSSIA

Terrible Conditions Prevail Under Sway of Reds

FOREIGNERS SEEK SAFETY

Refugees Tell of Sufferings and Privations That Seem Almost Unendurable—Steady Stream of Refugees Has Flowed Through Finland to Sweden for the Last Year—Factories Close, Industry Is Dying and Transportation Conditions Are Deplorable.

Terrible conditions in regard to food are reported by refugees from bolshevik Russia arriving at the Finnish port of Abo. The correspondent there of the London Times writes that the intermittent stream of refugees from Russia which for the last year has been flowing through Finland to Stockholm still continues—French, Belgian, British, American, Italian, Swedish, Swiss and Norwegian—all being compelled to seek safety.

"The sufferings and privations which these people have endured in Russia are, 'indescribable,' he says. 'They only become fully apparent to themselves on their arrival in a country where civilized methods prevail, and although in Finland food conditions are considered most serious, the refugees look upon it as a land flowing with milk and honey.

"At first, on seeing the condition of these people, one wonders why they remained so long in Russia, but as in the majority of cases, leaving Russia meant leaving home and the results of the work of a lifetime, they clung on in the hopes that things would turn for the better, while in many cases they were prevented from leaving by the bolsheviks until they were able to procure a doctor's certificate stating that they were physically unfit.

Russian Money Worth Less.
"On arrival in Finland these people suddenly find themselves as good as paupers, as the Russian money they have with them is practically valueless and can be seldom changed to Finnish marks, and then only at ruinous rates. Thus, the various volunteers have a considerable amount of work thrown on their hands in repatriating these people.

"I can personally certify to the gratitude displayed by the refugees for the slightest help, and in many cases they are people of a position capable of paying their own expenses as soon as they can telegraph for supplies from England.

"According to the refugees, the condition of Russia, defies description. At Petrograd the streets are deserted and food is unobtainable. Dogs and cats are being devoured, while wooden houses are being demolished to provide fuel, as also wooden fittings and furniture from houses whose owners have left.

"In consequence of the nationalization of the factories and the subsequent inability of the bolsheviks to manage them, industry is dying. The factories continue working until available stocks of raw material are used up, and then, much against the will of the workmen, are closed down. In Petrograd alone, during the last month 81 factories were brought to a standstill and about 50 per cent of the workmen have already left the town; this despite the fact that wages have advanced some ten times.

"Transport conditions are deplorable, and through the absence of capable technical assistance no repairs to locomotives and rolling stock are carried out.

Grain Harvest Ample.
"While Moscow and Petrograd are starving, the grain harvests of 1919 in the Urals, Tannob, Penna and Saratov governments are stored, and in such quantities that practically the whole of bolshevik Russia could be fed and sufficient left over for export.

"A member of the Society of Friends war victims relief committee stated that the bolsheviks were doing their best for the children, and that four relief colonies had been established at Tannob. This is said to be done with the object of impressing on the minds of the growing generation that they at least were looked after during the reign of the bolsheviks. Children are allowed to take part in the management of the schools, with results best left to the imagination.

"The educated classes are slowly being exterminated, and without their help the future reorganization and administration of the country will prove enormously difficult.

"The Germans are fully aware of the possibilities in Russia, and as every Russian with any pretense of education speaks either German or French the Germans have a great advantage over the British, and will not be slow to reap the benefit. Many Austrians are becoming Russian subjects, as are, it is stated, also Germans, in order to be prepared for the competition for Russian trade which is bound to come. The Norwegians, too, are planning and preparing for the future, while the Swedes are not far behind."

WHO WILL MAINTAIN YOUR CEMETERY LOT WHEN YOU ARE GONE?

Hill Grove Endowment Association Answers Question When Applied to Local Burial Ground.

The approach of Memorial Day again invites attention to the work of the Hill Grove Endowment Association, an organization formed two years ago to care for the graves in Hill Grove cemetery of members of the association and their loved ones. The problem of having one's cemetery lot kept green after the life is gone is solved by the endowment association which assumes that burden for the payment of a stated sum which will be placed on interest, the proceeds thereof to bear the expense of maintenance of the burial plot.

"Any voluntary contribution or bequest made to the corporation will be accepted and a certificate will be issued to the donor or the personal representative of the testator.

The minimum that will be accepted for the perpetual maintenance of burial lots shall be as follows:

For any lot not exceeding 100 square feet in area, $30; for any lot of more than 100 feet and not exceeding 200 square feet in area, $75; for any lot the area of which is in excess of 200 square feet, $100.

All funds belonging to the corporation will be deposited in a national bank of Connellsville until invested, and no investment of the funds will be made excepting in first mortgages within Fayette county or in railroad securities which are available for funds in savings banks in one or more of the states of Massachusetts, New York or Connecticut.

The officers of the association are: President, E. T. Norich; Alex. B. Hood, secretary and treasurer, with Joseph T. Johnston, J. A. Armstrong and J. Melvin Grey as directors.

Why Lack of Iron Keeps Women Weak, Nervous, Fretful and Run-Down

While Plenty of Red Blood—Rich in Iron—Helps Make Them Strong, Healthy and Beautiful.

How Organic Iron—Nuxated Iron—helps Solve Problem of Supplying Iron Deficiency, Thereby Increasing the Strength and Endurance of Delicate Care-worn Women in Two Weeks Time in Many Instances.

Many a woman who ought still to be young in feeling is losing the old-time vim and energy that makes life worth living simply because her blood is thinning out and possibly starving through lack of iron. It is through iron in the red coloring matter of the blood that life-sustaining oxygen enters the body and enables the blood to change food into living tissue, muscle and brain.

In commenting upon the alarming iron deficiency in the blood of the average woman of today, Dr. George H. Baker, formerly Physician and Surgeon, Monmouth Memorial Hospital of New Jersey said:

"What women need to put roses in their cheeks and the springtime of life into their step is not cosmetics or stimulating drugs, but plenty of rich pure red blood. Without it no woman can do credit to herself or to her work. Iron is one of the greatest of all strength and blood builders and I have found nothing in my experience so effective for helping to make strong, healthy, red blooded women as Nuxated Iron. From a careful examination of the formula and my own tests of Nuxated Iron I feel convinced that it is a preparation which any physician can take himself or prescribe for his patients with the utmost confidence of obtaining highly beneficial and satisfactory results."

Dr. Ferdinand King, a New York Physician and Medical Author says: "I have

For Spring Brides.

Now comes the spring bride, with all her belongings, from the crown of her head to her feet, more or less be-ribboned and lace-trimmed. Ribbons and laces play a gay and enchanting part in undermuslins, negligees, bou- dot caps, boudoir slippers and all the innumerable accessories of dress that need to be exquisite and dainty. Ribbons and laces of different character from those used for lingerie dress their field of usefulness into the realm of afternoon and evening gowns; almost nothing is made without them.

If one is casting about for gifts that a bride will surely love here are two canopies and two boudoir caps that are worth considering. They are charming new arrivals and there is not a fault to be found with them. One of the caps is the simplest sort of design, but the other is an ambitious affair that suggests an Egyptian head-dress as its inspiration, being a dainty interpretation of the jeweled head-piece worn in the ancient land of the lotus. The cap at the left is merely a straight piece of fine net gathered along one edge to form a crown, and near the other to form a narrow flounce. Poppies, made of ribbon, are set about it.

The canopy shown with this cap is of pointed-ecru and lace with four flounces of narrow ribbon. The ribbon is an inch and a half wide and forms shoulder straps with net placed over it. It is not at all difficult to make a canopy of this kind as the ribbon is

Gay Outing Hats.

The very latest sport hats are fashioned from batavia cloth, which is no more than coarse linen. These smart batavia hats appear in the greatest of colors, though many of the models have backgrounds of soft hues and rely for their color on brilliant trimmings. Flower motifs, cut from fabric and plastered on the hats, form a popular trimming.

WILSON ENDORSES SALVATION ARMY.

President Wilson, burdened as he is, found time to cable his endorsement of the Salvation Army Home Service Fund Campaign which will be conducted during the week of May 19-23. The cablegram:

Commander Miss E. Booth, Personal, Salvation Army, 125 West Fourteenth Street, New York.

I am very much interested to know that the Salvation Army is about to enter into a campaign for a sustaining fund. I feel that the Salvation Army needs no commendation from me. The love and gratitude it has elicited from the troops is a sufficient evidence of the work it has done, and I feel that it should not so much commend it as to congratulate it. Cordially and sincerely yours,

WOODROW WILSON

"OUT OF LOVE" CLUB

UNIQUE ORGANIZATION

Members Are Girls Rescued by Salvation Army.

The "Out of Love" Club is one of the important club organizations maintained by the Salvation Army in this country. In every large city where there is a Salvation Army corps girls who have been helped back into the normal pace of a workaday world are proud of the membership in this club. Disappointed, loveless girls who do not forget kindnesses shown them in their hour of greatest need give out of love to help other girls receive the same friendliness. In a simple quiet way this unique idea has been maintained for over 20 years.

In every large city in the country there are girls who have needed the ministrations of the Salvation Army. After they have been helped and sent on their way again they become life members of this club if they so desire. Only girls are admitted who have given a good account of themselves for at least one month in the positions found for them by the Salvation Army after their release from a hospital or home. These girls pledge themselves to keep alive the spirit of friendliness and home which the Salvation Army has spread among them. The girls are expected to dress in a plain, simple way, and avoid in any sense of the word gaudy or showy accessories.

Gossiping or tale bearing is tabooed. If members of the club transgress this rule they are liable to suspension for a month or longer. The "Out of Love Club" is one of the many activities that will benefit by the success of the Salvation Army Home Service Fund Campaign for $25,000,000 May 19-23.

Transparent Mystery

An Englishman returned from India bringing a native boy with him as a servant. The boy knew nothing about ice and one winter morning he came running to his master with a large piece from a bucket in the yard.

"Look, master," he said, "what a large piece of glass I have found."

His employer said it looked very wet and jokingly told him to put it on the back of the stove to dry. He did so, and presently came running back with the partly melted ice in his hand.

"Master, it's the queerest glass I ever saw. The more I dry it the wetter it gets!"—Boston Transcript.

There is a shortage throughout South Africa of corrugated iron, black and galvanized flat sheets, wire, tin plates and electrical accessories.

dispatches credited to it or not otherwise credited in this paper and also the local news published herein.MORE A PLEA THAN A MESSAGE.While respectful attention will be given to President Wilson's cable message to Congress neither the members of that body nor the public can get rid of the impression that it is more a plea of "confession and avoidance" than it is "information upon the state of the union," as the Constitution requires the President shall from time to time give Congress.Having been so long "out of touch with intimate sources of information and counsel" the President confesses his inability "to venture any opinion or press any recommendation with regard to domestic legislation." His presence at the peace table having formerly been declared to be a duty he now confesses that it was only "apparently imperative," but he "sincerely trusts" he "shall very soon be at my post in Washington again."With respect to the ventures into Socialistic schemes of government control of public utilities the President admits, by implication, at least, the failure of his experiments and expresses his entire willingness to leave to a Republican Congress the removal of the barbed-wire entanglements that are stopping the forward movement of business and industry.The recommendations relating to revision of taxation, aid to soldiers, prevention of child labor, woman suffrage, new shipping laws, tariff legislation, safeguards for labor and other matters, so closely follow the renounced program of the Republicans in Congress as to give rise to the suspicion that the President has taken his cue from the program of the opposition party for the purpose of appropriating the credit of suggesting progressive legislation to meet the great problems of the period of reconstruction and readjustment.The recommendation he makes with respect to the amendment of the wartime-prohibition act, so as to permit the manufacture of wines and beers, is not unexpected but it is certain to be found that it is not in accord with public sentiment, even if it is in harmony with the attitude of the President's party on the issue.In brief, the President, with his usual facility in the use of well balanced phrases, has "stepped from under" and has placed upon Congress the burden of repairing the ruin that has been wrought by unexampled inefficiency in national legislation and administration. Fortunately for the country this has been committed to safe hands.THINK OF THE BOY.Any father of a boy who is in his early teens cannot do otherwise than look upon the Boy Scout movement with favor if he takes the trouble to inform himself even in a casual way, concerning the purposes, methods and activities of this great and growing organization.It is not, as has been erroneously supposed, a sort of training school to develop boys into soldiers. It is a well wrought-out plan or system, founded upon natural methods and regulated by well established principles, whereby a boy develops all his faculties. He is trained to outdoor exercise and to become familiar with objects in nature. He is trained to accurately observe with his hands.
He is taught to use the knowledge he has gained in school and by reading as aids in discovering facts for himself, and once discovered he knows how to apply and use them. He is habi-tuated to a manly attitude toward his fellows and made to be courteous and chivalrous in his behavior. And, best of all, as an equipment for future usefulness as a citizen, the Boy Scout is constantly practicing in being useful to the public in rendering service, the highest duty of citizenship.The great popularity and the rapid growth of the organization arises from the fact that it appeals to boys. The best recruiting agents are the boys themselves. They like the organization; like what they get out of it; the fine spirit that pervades it, and they put themselves wholeheartedly into it.When these things are understood, as they soon are by every father who interests himself in his boy, the desire to have a more intimate relation to the work of the Boy Scouts is certain to be experienced. Just now there is a splendid opportunity for the fathers of Conneltsville to give substantial aid to such an interest or to acquire it if they do not already have it. A drive is on to raise $3,000 to provide a permanent summer camp for the Scouts of Conneltsville. It is being rapidly subscribed but the whole amount has not yet been raised.
Very probably you will be asked to share in it. When so requested, just think of the boy, and what membership in the Scouts means to him or is doing for him. We know what your answer will be."THINGS WILL BE ALL RIGHT."A peripatetic correspondent of The Courier, who has frequently given us
"tips" on Greene county coal sales, mailed from different parts of the country, comes to the front again in the following:"Watch coal sell in Green co., Pa.
now since Wilson Pres of U. S. has said good substance in his message.
"No kidding. Ha! ha! I know things would be all right."We can take courage, now that we have such an assuring interpretation that the message from the Winter Capital contains "good substance."It seems impossible to stop any drive in Conneltsville provided, of course, the right drivers hold the reins.In his recommendations for the return of the railroads, telegraphs and telephones to their owners the President overlooked the suggestion that Postmaster Burleson be included in the list.The men's committees will have to be right on the job every minute if they expect to make much of a showing in comparison with what the women's committees will do in the Home-Coming Celebration.Singular what a change so small a matter as an election makes in large people. Before last November Congress acted at the bidding of the President. Now, he places himself "at the service of the Congress in every matter of administration or counsel." Foreign travel is not without its benefits.The sad fate of Hawkeye the daring Australian aviator, is lamented by all.Back to Civil Life

Philadelphia Record.

The men in America's service in war often looked on their return to "God's country" and to the peaceful old life they knew much as lost souls in hell—according to theologians of past times—were supposed to gaze at the gates of heaven. They could think of no happiness greater than that of doffing the trappings of war for the habiliments of peace and going back to work at the good old job.Now that they are back, with all their deserved honors thick upon them, and now that the process of demobilization is every day returning many of them to civilian costume and custom, it is not the exceptional but the general experience for a man to find himself lost—ill at ease—restive and positively uncomfortable in the life of peace, to which he thought he would slide back so easily.His work brings him within four walls again, out of the open. To be sure, the out-of-doors was often made intensely horrible for the soldier by the damnable contraptions of the German. He could not retire to his dugout secure against the gas or the flame projector. But at the times when it was not poisoned or blackened the air was fresh and the life was as free as military duty permitted.In the camps at home the bugles blew for all sorts of things at all sorts of hours, and a man had to turn out for a great variety of exercises not when he liked, but in concert with a mighty host who must synchronize their movements.That was not liberty. It was nothing like liberty. The men concerned were temporarily giving up their liberty that they might gain liberty for all the rest of us. At home or abroad, individual prerogative and initiative were sacrificed for the greater good of the greater number that came of concerted action.But whether in cantonment here or in the field over there, the men were members of a great machine of quick action and alert decision, which to a large extent did their thinking for them. They were in the groove of routine. They did not come by their daily bread by their own business.
They got about $30 a month and their "keep" in place usually of the very much larger sum which they had made for themselves by their own enterprise. Now that they have returned, there is nothing automatic, comforting self-determining about the day's regimen. They are thrown entirely upon their own resources and no longer upon those of a vast, complex military establishment mechanically functioning to make provision for them.No wonder it takes time to effect the adjustment! No wonder that many men feel strangers though at home! There is a curtain of blood and fire and hurrying shells between the present life and the past, between today and yesterday. It is part of your proper concern and mine to ease the transition as much as we can, to make our sympathy felt, to hold the door open, to be a little indulgent to those who have stepped out of a world of sharp command and instant obedience to our easy-going, unimaginative and even unsympathetic sphere that, humming the tune "The War is Over," goes blithely about its appointed tasks so soon forgetting its hero worship and the wounded men. Surely after all they did for us we must be mindful of them and try in all ways to help them back to where they were and to reconcile them to their present surroundings.GAME HERE SATURDAYIndependents and Layton Will Meet

STRAWBERRY SHORTCAKE.I like to see the juleps in a scarlet flood and weed.
I don't want my strawberry shortcake standing stiff and prim and neat Cut preening to a measure like a church's corner stone.
Let the men who want it that way claim my portion for their own.
I don't like the market shortcake that is sold for social profit.
I want the sweet and luscious kind the missus makes herself.The hotel chef is fancy, he may trim
it up with cream.
And may make it look enticing, but there's nothing to the scheme.
He may have it gay with berries, but his art has gone to waste.
Though his work may look like short-cake it has lost the real taste.
So I leave that pretty mixture of the hotel kitchen shelf
And wait the juicy product that the missus makes herself.I want the strawberry shortcake that has caught the breath of spring.
It may not be much to look at, but I tell you, it's the thing.
Let me have the crimson berries crushed and swimming in the dish.
And I've got a piece of shortcake for which all the gods might wish.
I don't sigh for tony pastry, but I am a greedy elf.
When confronted by a shortcake that the missus makes herself.Four Are Arrested.Three colored women and one negro

SHE SUFFERED FOR YEARS UNTIL SHE TOOK PLANT JUICE

Pittsburg Lady Tells How New Remedy Relieved Her Aches and Pains.

Plant Juice the new herbal stomach remedy, regenerates the blood supply, overcomes rheumatism, eliminates catarrh, and puts the stomach in condition to digest the food properly.

MRS. SABRANNA BOYLE

That this is proven conclusively, it is only necessary to listen to the statements made daily by well-known local people, who have given Plant Juice a fair trial and have been greatly benefitted as for instance Mrs. Sabranna Boyle, who lives at No. 212 Alcoa street, North Side, Pittsburg, a well-known resident of Pittsburg, who has resided here for many years. She said:

"For many years I had trouble with my stomach, which was all bloated with gas and I suffered agony after eating. I dreaded to put any solid food in my stomach as I would be in constant misery for hours afterward.
I could not sleep at night and was very weak, nervous and restless, had headaches, dizzy spells, my liver and kidneys were affected and had terrible pains across my back and in my side.
Plant Juice had been recommended to me and I got a bottle to try it. I am 72 years of age and thought this might be against me, but I am happy to state that I got almost immediate relief and I have no more trouble whatever. I can eat anything, sleep well and am glad to endorse Plant Juice."
Plant Juice is sold in Connelville at Roy Hetzel's Drug Store.—Adv.

EXCELLENT TIP FOR BASEBALL MAGNATES

Better Results Obtained by Exhibiting More Interest.

When Ray Chapman of Cleveland Indians Was in a Rut He Went to Owner Dunn and Was Helped Greatly by Advice Given.

Baseball magnates might, on many occasions, obtain the greatest results from their players by exhibiting a bit of personal interest in the men. A striking example of the manner in which this system works out is the case of Magnate Dunn of the Cleveland team and Ray Chapman, the peerless shortstop.

In 1918 Chapman was deeply in the dumps. His batting average, shrunk way down, and his work in the field was at times quite rusty. He seemed to be working hard in every game, but he could not get results to satisfy himself. The fix was on his trail, too, and during the season he suffered several injuries. Rumors were around that "Chapman" was to be sold or traded.

Being a sensitive lad, he went to Magnate Dunn and explained that he was in a rut. Dunn did not bowl him out or threaten him in any way. He took the youngster to one side and talked to him like a father. "Among other things," he told Chapman he could not afford to lose a player of his caliber, and that he had all kinds of confidence in him. He advised Chapman to keep on working the best he could, and the fix would get discouraged and leave. Chapman left the conference light-hearted and determined to give up the best he had for the Cleveland owner.

Chapman's record shows clearly the result of that conference with his boss. He was easily right among the top notchers in the shortstop job and he has remained a real star ever since. Chapman swears by Magnate Dunn, and cites his little experience as tending to show what a little heart-to-heart confab will do for owner and player.

SINGLE TURNED INTO HOMER

Funnest Play in Experience of John McGraw of the Giants Happened at Olean, N. Y.

John McGraw, manager of the Giants, says the funniest play of his experience happened when he was the kid third baseman of the old Olean (N. Y.) team, the club with which he started his professional career.

The play was the climax of an exciting 14-inning Fourth of July game between the Olean team and its most hated rival, Bradford, Pa. With the score standing tied at 3 to 3 in the fourteenth with two out, Arthur Egan, the pony pitcher of the Olean team, dropped a single into left field. Owing to the holiday, a crowd surrounded the field.

As the Bradford left fielder was about to pick up the ball, a playful spunk left his master in the crowd and, picking the ball up, ran with it, the left fielder in pursuit. He caught up with the dog and tried to pull the ball out of his mouth, but the dog held.

While they were having their little tug-of-war in the outfield, Egan was dog-trotting around the bases and scored a home run, winning the game for Olean, 4 to 3.

Pitcher Lou North, formerly with the St. Louis Cardinals and later with the St. Paul club, has been signed by Clarence Rowland to pitch for his Milwaukee Brewers.

No more Wastabiach for Pat Moran, says the manager of the Reds. He declares his team will train in Florida next spring if he is still on the job and has anything to say about it.

Larry Gardner, former member of the Boston Red Sox, who was traded to the Cleveland Indians, says he never felt better and will have the greatest year of his career this coming summer.

SUNDAY BALL HELPS

Sunday baseball in New York will be a boon to the organized sport this season. With the legalizing of professional games in the metropolitan district, the American league will have six clubs in cities that permit Sabbath contests, while the National will have five. Sunday games mean more to baseball, for while patrons flocked to a low ebbs last summer, expenses availed to lofty heights and few clubs finished with a profit.

BASEBALL STORIES

Marty Kavanaugh as a college coach seems to have made good.

Eddie Collins has been appointed captain of the Chicago White Sox.

It begins to look as if the Braves are going to be much better than an ordinary team.

The Little Rock club of the Southern has purchased Outfielder John Frieson from Houston of the Texas.

Pitcher Urban Shooker, of the St. Louis Browns, now back from overseas, is held in service at Camp Upton.

Gus Getz, sold by Pittsburgh to Toledo, has decided, he says, to stick at his home in Newark and work in a shipyard.

Mike McNally threatens to oust both Jack Barry and Dave Shean from that second-base berth with the world's champions.

In exchange for Pete Compton the Seattle club is supposed to send Pitcher McFarlan and Infielder Brown to New Orleans.

The Pirates are trying out a big semipro pitcher named William Mattingly, who bails from Buffalo. He is a right-hander.

Memphis thinks a lot of its contingent of St. Louis ball players, which includes Joe Slattery, Vincent Walsh and Andy High.

Art Kores, Milwaukee boy with the Louisville club, may not be able to play this season due to an injury to his throwing arm.

Duffy Lewis is now a race horse manager. He is reported as having bought a pony called Veterans, said to be a comer on the track.

They are going to put Harry Sullivan in a baking machine in a Cincinnati hospital to see if his strained back muscles can't be cooked into shape.

The veteran Jake Beutler, on the veteran Galveston team, now seems to be making good at third base and is likely to go even better as the season advances.

Manager Robinson of the Dodgers after thinking it over decided to keep Zach Wheat as his third string catcher and let Jack Snyder go.

Miles, the Louisville pitcher, is a big fellow, who has had experience in the Central league. He has just recently been discharged from the army.

The Portland club of the Pacific Coast league and the Buffalo club of the International are in a dispute over the services of Pitcher Guy Cooper.

The big ace of the Des Moines pitching staff, Paul Musser, has just been released from the army, and there is an easier feeling now in Des Moines baseball circles.

Ed Konetsky, formerly of the Braves, is now a member of the Brooklyn club.

Fabrique, the former association player, will play with the Seattle club this season.

McGraw thinks he has a great young pitcher in Jesse Winters. The youngster is quick to learn.

The McHenry who is pitching for Sacramento and doing it quite well is a California youth, a former collegian.

Southworth, former A. A. player, now with the Pittsburghs, will occupy the cleanup position for the Pirates this season.

Tim Hendryx, former big leaguer, now with the Colonels, will be a power for the club this season if early games are any criterion.

With the advent of Grover Hartley into the lineup of the Columbus Senators, he will be the only playing manager in the association.

Steve Yerkes has been appointed captain of the Indians by Manager Hendricks. Yerkes is one of the most brainy ball tossers in the association.

The Colonels have an Italian in their lineup in the person of Mike Ceresi. He has yet to learn the fine points of the game but is eager to learn.

Sunday baseball in New York state has stirred up some of the old spirit that kept the New York State league alive, and there are hints of attempts to reorganize the circuit.

Baseball managers with stars back from the Shipbuilding league will be trying awake nights now trying to think of something they can put on the ball that will make it look like a rivet.

Nick Cullop, pitcher secured by the St. Louis Browns last year in the big deal with the New York Yankees, but who refused to report, has been heard from to the effect that he may come back.

Walter Leverenz, southpaw pitcher on whom the Salt Lake club was depending much for the coming season, has been discharged from military service, but does not seem inclined to return to baseball.

Ping Bodie is an old timer as ball players go, but he is mighty spry these days and a far better player than he gets credit for being. Ping just radiates optimism. He is counting his world's series money already.

NEW BROOKLYN CAPTAIN IS OF OPINION NOTHING IS WON BY LOT OF ARGUMENTS

Zach Wheat, new captain of the Brooklyn club and champion batter of the National league, says his head is all swelled up over the many titles he is forced to carry, but he is going out there to do his bit to the best of his ability and to lay off the umpires.

"It's a long trip from the outfield to the plate," quoth Zach, "and a fellow is liable to cool off or forget what it's all about by the time he gets within halting distance of the umps."

"I sometimes wish I were more aggressive, but you can't teach an old dog new tricks. I was never put out of a game or fined since I broke into baseball. I came mighty near it last season when I got warmed up over some sort of a decision, but cooled down in time. Just as good results can be obtained without unnecessary kicking, providing, of course, the umpires give us a 50-50 deal."

BALTIMORE VERDICT DOESN'T HURT GAME

Revolutionary Changes Not Forced, Only Hurried.

President Heydler of Opinion That Decision of Jury Cannot Retard Development of Pastime—Baseball Will Thrive.

Professional baseball, under organized control, will live on, despite the verdict obtained by the Baltimore club of the defunct Federal league.

The game itself is no different today than it has ever been. The fact that a jury has ordered the powers that be to pay the Baltimore Federals a few thousand dollars has not hurt baseball as a sport and what was first looked upon as a body blow by a great many followers of baseball affairs is now being run.

As baseball is now constituted, the player contract, with the reserve clause, the draft law and the agreement between leagues stands as its backbone, for despite the supposed abrogation of the national agreement, the minor leagues are still affiliated with the majors officially.

The fact that a club can keep one ball player as long as it chooses to do so or let him out on ten days' notice has been the big bone of the game. A new form of contract that will satisfy most any court will be about all that baseball will need in the way of a change.

There is no need for dissolving the national commission because of the Baltimore verdict.

JINX BALL DAY FOR SPEAKER

Most Miserable Game Was Played at Cleveland When He Hit Woman With Batted Ball.

Tris Speaker has done such wonderful playing throughout his baseball career that it's hard to tell what was his most brilliant play at the national game.

But Spoke says he has no trouble picking out the most wretched game he ever played. It was in Cleveland.

"One day, summer before last," says he, "the upper stands were packed with people. My first time up I caught a ball square on the end of my bat and drove it a mile a minute into that upper crowd."

"It hit a woman in the head, and I could see them help her out of the stand. A few minutes later I got the report that she was dead."

"The report wasn't true, but I didn't find out until after the game. I muffed two flies in the outfield—a new record for myself—and I struck out, helping materially to lose the game. Nobody knows what mental anguish I suffered till I found out the truth."

SINGING AND SINGERS

The Giants have always been a singing ball club. They are still a singing ball club. But the old Giant quartet of Fletcher Schupp, Zimmerman and Robertson has been broken up. Robertson is, of course, not with the team any more.

The Giant singers miss Davey, which recalls Germany Schaefer's pet story.

Schaefer says that a negro was about to be hung by the minions of the law in a southern city. As he was led to the scaffold the sheriff asked him if he had anything to say.

The prisoner thought a minute. "Yes, sah," he finally said. "Ah hab' dis to say. Yo'all is about to hang de best tenor singer in dis heah county."

Good tobacco ought to be like a well-bred hoss—all th' kick taken out but all th' sperit left in.

You see, half the secret of makin' a good hoss is in the breedin' an' half in the breakin'. Selectin' tobacco that's grown right is only half of makin' Velvet. The agein' is the other half.

Thar's only one kind of agein' that gets th' right results—Nature's own. Nature's no clock watcher. She does a job right whether it takes two years or two thousand.

So when she gets through with the fine Kentucky Burley that we put away in wooden hogsheads for two years, it's just right.

Jacqueline of Golden River

by Victor Rousseau

Copyright W. G. Chapman

But just as I started back into the tunnel, holding the arm of the old man, who lingered reluctantly and yet began to yield, a pebble leaped from the rocky platform and rebounded from the cliff. I cast a backward glance, and there upon the opposite side I saw Leroux standing.

"Bonjour, M. Hewlett!" he called across the chasm. "Don't be afraid of me any more than I am afraid of you. Just wait a moment. I want to talk business."

"I have no business to talk with you," I answered.

"But I did not say it was with you, Monsieur," he answered in sneering tones. "It is with our friend Duchaine. Hold! Duchaine!"

At the sound of Leroux's voice the old man straightened himself and began muttering and looking from the one to the other of us undecidedly.

Suddenly I saw him turn his head and fix his eyes upon Leroux. He craned his neck forward, and then, very slowly, he began to walk toward his persecutor. I craned my neck. Leroux was holding out the round little wheel.

"Come along, Charles, my friend," he cried.

"Come, let us try our fortunes! Don't you want to stake some money upon your system against me?"

The old game had leaped forward over the ledge, and in a moment Leroux had grasped him and pulled him into the tunnel.

I hastened back to Jacqueline and encountered her in the passage just where the light and darkness blended, standing with arms stretched out against the wall to steady herself, and in her eyes was that look which tells a man more surely than anything, I think, can, that a woman loves him.

"Oh, I thought you were dead!" she sobbed, and fell into my arms.

I held her tightly to support her, and I led her back to the old cave.

In a few words I explained what had occurred.

"Now, Jacqueline, you must let me guide you," I said. "Don't you see that there is no chance for us unless we leave your father for the present where he is and make our own escape?"

We can reach Pere Antoine's cabin soon after midday, and we can tell him your father is a prisoner here. He would not come with us, Jacqueline, even if he were here.

She did not respond. It was the safety of us two and her father's life assured, against a miserable fate for her, and I knew not what for me, though I thought Leroux would give me little shift once I was in his power again.

She was so silent that I thought I had convinced her. I urged her to her feet. But suddenly I heard a stealthy footfall close at hand, between the cave and the catacomb.

I thought it was Charles Duchaine. I hoped it was Leroux. I placed my finger on Jacqueline's lips and crept stealthily to the passage, revolver in hand.

Then, in the gloom, I saw the villainous face of Jean Petitjean looking into mine, twelve paces away, and in his hand was a revolver too.

We fired together. But the surprise spoiled his aim, for his bullet whistled past me. I think my shot struck him somewhere, for he started a yell and began running back along the tunnel as hard as he could.

I followed him, firing as fast as I could reload. Fortune helped the runner, for when I reached the light he was scrambling across the ledge, and before I could cover him he had succeeded in disappearing behind the projecting rock on the other side.

So Leroux had already sealed one exit—that by the Old Angel, where the road led into the main passage. God grant that he had not time to reach the exit by the mine!

If I made haste! If I made haste! But I would not argue the matter any further. I ran back at full speed. I reached the cave.

"Jacqueline! Come, come!" I called.

She did not answer.

I ran forward, peering round me in the obscurity. I saw her near the earthsacks, lying upon her side. Her eyes were closed, her face as white as a dead woman's.

The bullet from Jean Petitjean's revolver that missed me must have penetrated her body.

She lived, for her breast stirred, though so faintly that it seemed as though all that remained of life were concentrated in the faint throbbing heartbeats.

I raised her in my arms and placed a sack beneath her head, making a resting place for her with my fur coat. Then with my knife I cut away her dress over the wound.

There was a bullet hole beneath her breast, stained with dark blood. I ran down to the rivulet, risking an ambush, brought back cold water, and washed it, and slathered the flow as best I could, making a bandage and placing it above the wound.

I have a dim remembrance of losing my self-control when this was done, and clasping her in my arms and pressing my lips to her cold cheek and begging her to live and playing wildly that she should not die. Then I raised her in my arms and was staggering across the cave toward the tunnel which led to the rocky stone.

And then, just as I approached the barricade of earth-filled bags, Leroux and the man Raoul emerged from the tunnel's mouth and ran toward me.

I stopped behind the barricade.

Presently I saw something white flickering from the tunnel. It was a white handkerchief upon a stick of wood.

Then Leroux's voice hailed me from the tunnel.

"Hewlett!" he called, and there was no trace of mockery in his tones now. "Will you come out and talk with me? Will you meet me in the open, if you prefer?"

I fired one shot in futile rage. It struck the cliff and sent a stone flying into the stream.

"Then silence followed. And I took Jacqueline and carried her back into the little hollow space. I put my hand upon her breast."

It stirred. She breathed faintly, though she showed no sign of consciousness.

Heaven knows what was in my mind. I stood beneath that awful curtain firing at the blind rock, and now I was back behind the earthbags shooting into the tunnel.

So the afternoon wore away. The sun had sunk behind the cliffs. I had fired away all but six of my cartridges. Then the memory of my similar act of folly before came home to me. I grew more calm.

I felt my way around the cave with the faint hope that there might be some other egress there.

There was none, but I made out a recess, which I did not perceived until about one-half as large as the cave itself, and opening into it by a small passage just large enough to give admittance to a single person. Here I should have only one front to defend.

So I carried Jacqueline inside and began industriously digging the bags of earth into this last refuge. Before I had grown quite dark I had barricaded Jacqueline and myself within a place the size of a hall bedroom inclosed upon three sides with rock.

And there I waited for the end.

I sat beside Jacqueline, holding her hand with one of mine, and my revolver in the other. There was a faint flutter at her wrist. I fancied that it had grown stronger during the past half-hour.

But I was unprepared to hear her whisper to me, and when she spoke I was short in a moment.

"Paul!" she said faintly.

"Jacqueline!"

"Paul! Bend down. I want to speak to you. Do you know I have been conscious for a long time, my dear? I have been thinking. Are you distressed because of me?"

"My dear!" I said, and that was all that I could say. I clasped her cold little hand tightly in mine.

"You must leave me, Paul, because—because of what is between us. You must go to Leroux and tell him so. You love me, Paul?"

"Always, Jacqueline," I whispered. She put her arms about my neck.

"I love you, Paul," she said. "It seems so easy to say it in the dark, and it used to be so hard. Do you know what I admitted and loved you for, even when you thought my mind unstable and empty? How true you were! It was that, dear. It was your honor, Paul."

"That was why, when I remembered everything that dreadful night in the tunnel, I felt my way around the cave with the faint hope that there might be some other egress there."

"Jacqueline!"

"Paul! Bend down. I want to speak to you. Do you know I have been conscious for a long time, my dear? I have been thinking. Are you distressed because of me?"

"My dear!" I said, and that was all that I could say. I clasped her cold little hand tightly in mine."

"You must leave me, Paul, because—because of what is between us. You must go to Leroux and tell him so. You love me, Paul?"

"Always, Jacqueline," I whispered. She put her arms about my neck."

"I love you, Paul," she said. "It seems so easy to say it in the dark, and it used to be so hard. Do you know what I admitted and loved you for, even when you thought my mind unstable and empty? How true you were! It was that, dear. It was your honor, Paul."

"That was why, when I remembered everything that dreadful night in the

There was none, but I made out a recess, which I did not perceived until about one-half as large as the cave itself, and opening into it by a small passage just large enough to give admittance to a single person. Here I should have only one front to defend."

So I carried Jacqueline inside and began industriously digging the bags of earth into this last refuge. Before I had grown quite dark I had barricaded Jacqueline and myself within a place the size of a hall bedroom inclosed upon three sides with rock."

And there I waited for the end."

I sat beside Jacqueline, holding her hand with one of mine, and my revolver in the other. There was a faint flutter at her wrist. I fancied that it had grown stronger during the past half-hour."

But I was unprepared to hear her whisper to me, and when she spoke I was short in a moment."

"Paul!" she said faintly."

"Jacqueline!"

"Paul! Bend down. I want to speak to you. Do you know I have been conscious for a long time, my dear? I have been thinking. Are you distressed because of me?"

"My dear!" I said, and that was all that I could say. I clasped her cold little hand tightly in mine."

HIS LIFE'S OUTLOOK HAS BRIGHTER HUE

Arthur Miller, of Drexel Hill, a subject of Philadelphia, says he is a real optimist now, and that his outlook on life is brighter than ever. "I suffered from stomach trouble. The gas would accumulate around my liver and heart. Occasionally I would have sharp twinges of rheumatism in the joints and muscles of my legs and shoulders. There was considerable belching of gas and a water-brash. A sour, acid stomach, manifested itself in an ugly, dark-brown taste, like bile. I bought Tanlac because I heard about the good it did others. Tanlac helped me from the start."

The genuine J. I. Gore Co. Tanlac is sold here by Beighley's, Harmon's and Connellsville drug stores and other leading druggists in every community.

spoke the truth. I knew at last that I was vanquished. For now that Jacqueline lay there so weak, so helpless, and thinking all our past was but a dream, there was nothing but to yield. I could not fight any more.

"So I left her and climbed cross the bags and went down toward the stream."

"But before I had reached it a dark figure slipped from among the shadows of the rocks and came toward me, and by the faint starlight I saw the face of Pierre Caribou!"

He stopped me and held me by both shoulders, and he drew me into the recesses of the rocks and bent his wizened old face toward mine.

"Ah, monsieur, so you did not obey old Pierre Caribou and stay in the cave," he said.

"Pierre, I did not know that you would return," I answered.

"Never mind," the Indian answered, looking at me strangely. "All finish now. Diable take Leroux. His time come. Diable show me!"

"How?" I answered, startled.

"All finish," said Pierre, inexorably, and as I watched him a superstitious fear crept over me. He, who had cringed, even when he gave the command, now cringed no longer, and there was a look in his old face that I had only seen on one man's before—on my father's the night he died.

"Pierre, where is Leroux?" I whispered. "Shall I surrender to him or shall I fight?"

"No matter," he said once again. "Diable, suppose you go back to man's hole, and soon Simon come. His diable lead him to you. His diable tell you what to say. All finish now!"

He walked past me noiselessly, a tenuous shadow, and his bearing was as proud as that of his race had been in the long ago, when they were lords where now their white masters ruled.

I went to Jacqueline and took my seat upon the earth bag barricade. I had my revolver in my hand, but it was not loaded. I threw the cartridges upon the floor.

It seemed only a few minutes before a voice hailed me from the tunnel.

"Paul Hewlett," said Leroux, "you have made a good fight, but you are done for. I offer you terms."

"What terms?" I asked.

"The same as before. I can afford to let you go, for, though my instincts cry out loudly for your death, I am a business man, and I can suppress them when it has to be done. In brief, M. Hewlett, you can go when you choose."

"M. Leroux," I answered, "I will say something to you for your own sake, and Mme. d'Epernay's, that I would not deign to say to any other man. She is as pure as the best woman in the land. I found her wandering in the street. I saved her from the assault of your hired ruffians. I gave up my own apartment to her and went away. Do you believe what I have said to you?"

He looked hard into my face.

"Yes," he said simply. "And it makes all the difference in the world to me."

"Pere Antoine will marry you?" I asked.

"Yes," he replied.

"And her father?"

"Is safe in the chateau, playing with his wheel and amassing a fortune in his dreams."

"One more word," I continued. "Mme. d'Epernay is very ill. She was struck by one of those bullets that you fired through the door. Wait!" for he had started. "I think that she will live. The wound cannot have pierced a vital part. But we must be very gentle in moving her. You had better bring the sleigh here, and you and I will lift her into it. And then—I shall not see her again."

"I followed him, but he must have known every fissure in the cliff. For he vanished before my eyes, apparently through the solid rock, and when I reached the place of his disappearance I could find no sign of any passage there."

And at that moment I heard Leroux's voice halting me, and looked round to see him where from the tunnel at my side. He was staring in bewilderment at the entrance. "Because we have fought, and now we are beaten, Paul!"

I bowed my head. I knew that she through that tunnel a hundred times and never missed the path before."

He swung round petulantly, and at that moment a shadow glided out of the darkness and stood in front of him. It was Pierre Caribou, lean, shrewy and old. He blocked the path and faced Leroux in silence.

Leroux looked at him, and an oath broke from his lips as he read the other's purpose upon his face. Squaring his mighty shoulders and clenching his fists, he leaped at him headlong.

Pierre stopped, quietly aside, and Simon measured his full length within the tunnel. But, when he had scrambled to his feet with a bellowing challenge, Pierre was in front of him again.

"What are you here for?" roared Leroux, but in a quivering voice that did not sound like his own. "Get out of the way or I'll smash your face!"

The Indian still blocked the passage. "Your time come now, Simon. All finish now," he answered.

"THE HEART OF HUMANITY"
Allen Hobart's Super Production
starring DOROTHEA PHILLIPS

THE SOISSON.

"THE HEART OF HUMANITY"—A play destined to live forever in the hearts of those who see it is being shown today and will be repeated tomorrow. Dorothea Phillips, the well-known screen star, supported by a splendid cast, is seen in the leading role. Nanette, ward of Father Michael, the parish priest, and wife of John Patricia, oldest and handsomest of five sons of the Widow Patricia, in the Canadian Expeditionary Forces, is so moved by John's descriptions of the misery and suffering he has found among the children of France and Belgium that she decides to go abroad as a Red Cross nurse. She leaves her own baby at home and enlists. In a convent in Flanders that has been converted into a refuge for orphaned and homeless children, the little wife works night and day to allay their sufferings and bring cheer into their hearts. While engaged in this work she is captured by the Germans and brought before Eric von Strang, a Prussian officer who had once been her husband's college friend and who had tried to make love to her in the little Canadian village. Strang's old desire for her returns and he tries to force his attentions upon her. There is a terrific fight. She escapes to another room and plunges a knife into her bosom just as John, her husband, rushes into the room. She recovers, however, and weeks later, in a hospital, she is decorated by the French government for valorous service with the Red Cross and is permitted to go home. Later there is a happy reunion in Canada—a reunion which crowns with complete happiness the work of Nanette.

THE VICTOR RECORD MAKERS.

Popularity of the Victor Record Makers, who give a concert in the high school auditorium next Saturday evening at 8:15 was demonstrated today when the sale of reserved seats opened at McDonald's music store. In addition to a rush for reservations on the part of local persons, telephone requests from Scituate, Dunbar, Dawson, Vanderbilt and surrounding towns indicate that quite a delegation will come to Connelville for the performance. There have also been inquiries for reservations on the part of Uniontown and Mount Pleasant people, many of whom were unable to obtain seats when the Victor artists appeared in those towns.

P. T. McDonald, under whose direction the company is being brought to Connelville, has been advised that the program will be brought up to the minute and that the very latest musical numbers are to be presented. Much interest attaches to the appearance of Monroe Silver, the monologist, whose part in the program will be no small one. Silver is declared to be one of the best Jewish monologists appearing in public. His talks are delightfully funny without being in the least offensive. As a matter of fact no one enjoys his monologues more than those of the race he imitates.

There are 17 numbers on the program, most of which call for at least two selections. In the matter of quantity there is never complaint for the Victor Record Makers are as generous as they are capable.

Indications are that the entire seating capacity of the big high school auditorium will be taken. The demand for seats from out of town points has exceeded the expectations of the management.

THE PARAMOUNT.

"THE AMAZING WIFE"—An emotional story of more than ordinary power with Mary MacLaren, the charming screen star, in the leading role, is being shown today. Miss MacLaren plays the part of Cicely Osborne, a young girl who is to aid her sick mother in obtaining needed food and medicine, consents against her inclination to marry John Ashton, a lodger in the same house. Ashton, a coarse nature soon reveals itself and on his wedding night he is killed in a drunken brawl in a cabaret. Cicely, terrified, hastens home, only to find that her mother had died. Following days of dread, in which she fears to look for work through fear of being arrested in connection with her husband's death, Cicely reads in a newspaper an account of the death of another John Ashton, one of wealthy parents, killed in action in France. Desperate and on the verge of starvation, she decides to present herself as Lieutenant Ashton's widow, secretly married just before he sailed for France. The young officer's parents accept her unhesitatingly, when she presents her marriage license bearing his son's name. But Lieutenant Ashton is not dead. Returning to recuperate from severe wounds, he is astounded to find himself confronted with a wife. The ensuing complications, leading to a big emotional climax, from an absorbing story. Miss MacLaren is supported by Frank Mayo, who appears in the role of Lieutenant Ashton and other prominent players. A selected comedy is also being shown. Tomorrow, Montague Love, Evelyn Greasley, June Ellidge, Johnnie Hines and Carlie Blackwell, all popular World stars, will be presented in "Three Green Eyes."

THE ARCADE.

"HAL HOYT'S GEE WHEZ REVOZ"—This play is playing a return engagement at the Arcade, having been here a short time ago, and owing to the many inquiries and requests for their return they are here again—but this time with new bills, a better show and just as much popularity. Mr. Hoyt has been noted for putting out some good shows, but this one is positively the best that he has ever produced. They played to good houses Monday and Tuesday and expect even better attendance for the remainder of the week. Mr. Hoyt plays the main comedy role himself, and is better than ever.

"The Man of Might"—William Duncan, Vitagraph's director and serial star, is as reckless with a motor car as he is with anything else when it comes to getting action in front of the camera, but he goes the limit and then some, in a scene in the second and third episodes of "The Man of Might," which will be shown at the Arcade tonight and tomorrow. He leaps a chasm forty feet wide in an automobile, flying alone, at the rate of a mile a minute, lands with a bump and a swerve on the other side and keeps on going. This scene is absolutely genuine and is of historic interest, since the location was in the famous Fremont Pass, through which General Fremont led his troops in the early days of the west. A specially constructed runway was used, and the actual distance that the car leaped is said to have been sixty feet.

WEDDED AT GRAVE'S EDGE

Remarkable Ceremony by Which Philadelphia Jews Hoped to Stop Ravages of Influenza.

With the hope of protecting the orthodox Russian Jews in Philadelphia from further ravages of the influenza epidemic two Hebrews were married at the first line of graves in the Jewish cemetery a few months ago. More than 1,200 Russian Jews watched the rabbi perform the wedding ceremony.

When the couple were pronounced man and wife, the orthodox among the spectators filed solemnly past the couple and made their presents of money in sums ranging from ten cents to a hundred dollars, according to the means and circumstances of the donor, until more than $1,000 had been given.

After the last offering the bride and bridegroom walked to the gravesward further from the graves, where a wedding feast was quickly spread from the two truckloads of food that others of the faithful had provided.

The marriage in a cemetery, with the idea of warding off the ravages of an epidemic, is a revival of a custom that has prevailed for hundreds of years among the Jews in the heart of Russia. When Russia was swept by cholera several centuries ago Jews died by the hundreds. Panic seized them, and they called a council of elders and rabbis, who decided that the attention of God should be called to the affliction of their fellows if the most humble man and woman among them should join in marriage in the presence of the dead.

So they asked a young man and a woman, who were unknown to each other and who were without wealth, to marry in order to save their fellows from the cholera scourge. The young people agreed, and the ceremony was performed. According to the tradition, the ravages of the cholera subsided within three days.—Youth's Companion.

Many Raise Peppermint.

Peppermint probably occupies one of the most honorable places on the list of drug plants, for the distillation of oil from its leaves is an important industry, to which thousands of acres are devoted, principally in Michigan and New York. Their oils are extracted also from wintergreen, pennyroyal, tansy and a number of other well-known plants. To be salable the leaves must be dried in a place where there is plenty of air but no dampness, and in the shade, for this keeps the bright color. They must be looked over with care that no other leaves are mixed with them and packed in boxes or barrels to be shipped. Beliefs on this subject may be obtained from the superintendent of documents, Washington, D. C., at a cost of 15 cents apiece. Uncle Sam warns us that there are risks in these crops as well as in others, but all enterprises are risks in this uncertain world.

The Railroads—A Bankrupt Industry

Only one rational conclusion can be drawn from the statistics of railway earnings and expenses for the first three months of 1913. The Railway Age declares in an editorial in its current issue. This is, "that the railroads are today a bankrupt industry and that no increase of traffic, or increase in efficiency of operation, or increase in both, which there is the slightest possibility will occur, would leave the railways anything but a bankrupt industry, if existing wages and existing freight and passenger rates were both retained."

"The deficit incurred by the Railroad Administration continues to grow faster even than the most pessimistic have feared," says the Railway Age. "It was $58,000,000 in March. This made the total deficit for the first three months of the year approximately $173,000,000, or almost one and a half million dollars a day."

"Director General Hines, on his recent trip to the Pacific coast, made a number of addresses and public statements. He appears to have attributed the current bad showing of earnings and expenses chiefly to the heavy decline of traffic. He indicated that in his opinion the results will improve when industrial and transportation conditions become normal."

"Let us consider the director general's attitude in the light of the facts. It is true there has been a decline of traffic. But conditions in 1912 and 1913 were not normal and the traffic handled in those years showed a vast increase largely due to war conditions. Let us go back to the first three months of 1916. In that year the railroads had the largest increase of traffic that ever occurred in any single year. They made the largest operating income ever made in one year. Consequently most people assume that because of the recent decline in traffic the business which has been moved thus far this year has been much less than in the remarkable year 1916. It is somewhat disconcerting, therefore, to find that in the first three months of 1913 the freight traffic of the railroads was 83 billion ton-miles, while in the first three months of 1916 it was only 80 billion ton-miles, an increase in 1913 over 1916 of over six per cent. Furthermore, the traffic handled in the first three months of 1913 was only 10 per cent less than that moved in the corresponding three months of 1917 and 1918."

"Bearing in mind that the freight traffic moved in the first three months of the year was six per cent greater than that moved in the same three months of 1916, let us compare the earnings made and the expenses incurred. The total earnings in these three months in 1916 were $811,000,000, while in 1913 they were $1,200,000,000, an increase of 38 per cent. The operating expenses in 1916 were $860,000,000 while in 1913 they were $1,337,000,000, an increase of 55 per cent. In the first three months of 1916, the ratio of expenses to total earnings was 69 per cent. In 1913, with passenger rates 50 per cent higher, and freight rates close to 35 per cent higher, the ratio of operating expenses to total earnings was 93 per cent. In the first three months of 1916 the railroads, after paying their expenses and taxes, had left $214,000,000 of operating income. In the first three months of 1913, they had operating income (which is slightly larger than net operating income) amounting to only $44,000,000, a decline as compared with 1916 of 79½ per cent.

"It is easy enough for anybody who carefully examines the foregoing figures to see what is the main trouble with the railroads. It is not the decline of traffic, but the increase of expenses."

"Mr. Hines seems to look forward confidently to a revival of business which will stop the decline in traffic. But that the loss of traffic during the year will be relatively less during the first three months—that is, 10 per cent—there seems no good reason for believing. If the loss of traffic throughout the year should be relatively as large as it was during the first three months and railroad expenses should continue to be relatively as large, the government's deficit for the year would be about three-quarters of a billion dollars."

"Mr. Hines is also counting upon a substantial reduction of expenses. But the progress which has been made up to the end of March does not inspire hope. In January, when there was an increase of 10 per cent in the freight moved, the increase in operating expenses, compared with the same month of 1912, was 32 per cent. In February, when the decline in freight traffic was 13 per cent, the increase in operating expenses was 24 per cent. In March, when the decline of freight traffic was 23 per cent, the increase in expenses was 23 per cent.

"The railroad system of the United States is earning only 23 per cent as much net operating income as in the three years ended with June 30, 1917, in spite of the fact that its gross earnings are running about 50 per cent more than then. The rates must be advanced, and substantially advanced if the railroads are ever to be converted from a bankrupt into a prosperous industry, and this whether government operation is continued or private operation restored."

Doctor Issues Warning

And Tells How to Stop Tobacco Habit

TREATMENT CAN BE GIVEN SECRETLY

HERE IS HIS PRESCRIPTION
NEW YORK—Doctor Connor, formerly of Johns Hopkins Hospital, says: "I am often asked if I know of anything to stop the tobacco habit which can be given secretly, and I always recommend a formula which I have frequently prescribed with great success. Here it is: Go to any up-to-date drug store and get fourteen Nicotol Powders. Put one powder twice a day in tea, coffee, milk or food. In a short time all desire for smoking will disappear, and the victim will believe he has stopped the use of his own accord. These powders are odorless, colorless, tasteless—charitable cannot be detected. They contain no habit-forming drugs, are absolutely harmless and will satisfy those who try them. The use of tobacco stops the vitality and the life of the individual who is addicted by its seductive effects."

It undermines the health and leaves the victim an easy prey to general debility, throat and lung troubles, nervousness, insomnia, heart trouble, kidney trouble, headache, tongue and its cankers, and even blindness. Physicians the world over often trace the start of the above diseases and many others to nicotine poisoning. If you have a friend or relative whom you would like to see cured it is your duty to help him get rid of the habit without delay. Try the above formula on him and you will be surprised at the facility with which it does the work. Remember, there are no bad side effects.

NOTE—Nicotol Powders are in packages and are sold under an iron-clad money-refund guarantee in this city by all up-to-date druggists, including J. C. Moore—Adv.

"Not exactly. But just the same I'm wearing sackcloth and ashes."

Touch and Go.
Agent the saying, "Touch and go." "You've noticed, I'll be bound, that when a fellow makes a touch he doesn't hang around."

Could Charge Bigger Fee.
"I guess that young doctor hasn't been practicing long."
"Why do you think that?"

"He told a friend of mine he was suffering from loss of appetite, whereas an older doctor would have called it 'anorexia.'"

Explaining Her Position.
"And are you a good needlewoman and renovator, and willing to be useful?"

"Madam, I am afraid there is some misunderstanding. I am a lady's maid—not a useful maid."—London Punch.

Foolish Investments.
"You never talk about your investments."

"No I can't brag about the ones I make and I'm too proud to go around admitting the glorious chances to get rich that I could have had, but turned down."

A Sad Prediction.
Fortune Teller—You are going to be visited by a dark lady.

Pensive Patron—Visited? Oh, dear! And I thought the new cook I hired at the intelligence office this afternoon looked like a stayer.

The Intelligent Horse.
"The horse is an intelligent animal."

"Very. It never walks into a man's office when he's busy and insists on talking over a lot of unimportant matters with him."

Not Catching.
"I hear your father is ill."

"Yes."

"Is his malady contagious?"

"I hope not. The doctor says he is suffering from overwork."

Paradoxical Trouble.
"Smith is very much cut up."

"Why?"

"Because his salary is very much cut down."

Somewhat Scared.
"I understand that nephew of yours took you for a joy ride."

"That was no joy ride for me," answered Mr. Chuggins. "That was a fear ride."

The Exception.
"He may be grouchy, but he certainly cannot pick flaws in anything which is really well done."

"Oh, yes, he can. He complains of meat when it is rare."

So It Seems.
"A seaman's strike is a very serious one."

"Naturally, since a vessel cannot start its cruise until the crews start the vessel."
